Victim of Accident at the Pennsylvania Depot.

DIED IN AMBULANCE

NO WITNESS TO THE AFFAIR TO TELL HOW IT OCCURRED.

Believed She Attempted to Alight From Moving Train and Dress Was Caught on Step.

A fatal accident occurred in the Baltimore and Potomac depot last night about 10 o'clock, in which the victim was Mrs. Henrietta Prince, wife of Mr. A. D. Prince, a member of the firm of R. Harris & Co., jewelers, at 7th and D streets northwest. Mrs. Prince had gone to the depot to see her mother, Mrs. Ida Schiff, comfortably seated on the train to go to her home at Charlotte, N. C., after a visit here. It is thought Mrs. Prince remained in the car until after the train had started, and that in stepping from the moving train her dress became entargled in the truck and she was crushed between the boxes of the cars and the concrete pavement. The depot was fairly well crowded at the time of the accident, and Mr. Prince was in the waiting room waiting for his wife. When she did not appear after the departure of the train he concluded she would be unable to get off until the train reached Alexandria. He therefore determined to send her a message and meet her in Alexandria. Before this had been done, however, he learned of the accident and went to the Emergency Hospital with his wife. She died in the ambu lance before the nospital was reached. Her body was cared for at the hospital until the coroner gave permission for its re-moval to the family home, 1523 16th street northwest.

The first that was known of the accident was when Thomas O'Connor and John O'Donnell, railroad employes, noticed a piece of a dress on the trucks of one of the cars of the train. They had examined the boxes and were standing near the south end of the yard to see if their work was all right as the heavy train pulled out. Upon seeing the piece of dress goods they walked north on the platferm until they discovered Mrs. Prince lying between the track and the pavement in a dying condition. The police were summoned and a message to the Emergency Hospital brought the ambulance there in a short time. Mrs. Prince was placed in the vehicle, and a hurried run was made to the hospital, but death occurred before the ambulance reached there.

Investigation Started. Sergeant Murphy of the sixth precinct was at the depot at the time the accident occurred. He made every effort to ascertain just how the affair happened, but was unable to find any person who had seen

Mrs. Prince when she was dragged to the place where she received her fatal injuries. He found the two workmen, O'Connor and O'Donnell, and learned from them that they were the only ones on the platform near that particular train at the time the accident occurred. At the suggestion of the sergeant the railroad officials communicated with the members of the train crew and ascertained that none of them had witnessed the affair. The passengers on the train were interviewed and they were also in ignorance of what happened.

Will Hold Inquest. dence. After a slight investigation of the affair this morning the coroner decided to hold an inquest at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The hearing was de-layed until Friday because the members of the train crew will not return here until that day. Mr. Prince is completely pros-trated over the tragic death of his wife, and his condition is regarded as serious. Dr. H. M. Kaufman, the family physician, is attending him. Mrs. Prince was forty-five years old. She is survived by her hus-band and two daughters.

Interesting Episode of the Debate on the Sundry Civil Bill.

During the consideration of the sundry civil bill late yesterday evening an appropriation of $200,000 for the completion of of the proposed general army hospital in Washington, a project which has been urged by the War Department as extremely desirable, was stricken from the bill on a point of order. The paragraph placing the judiciary of the District of Columbia on a half-and-half basis, thus making the District share one-half of the expense at an annual cost of about $75,000, was also eliminated. The debate on the two propositions was at times rather interesting. The hospital paragraph in the bill provided that $200,000 be appropriated for the purchase of a site and toward the con-struction of a general army hospital, the total cost of which shall not exceed the sum of $400,000. Representative Bartlett made the point of order against the para-graph, and Chairman Hemenway, of the appropriations committee, acknowledged that it was well taken. Then Representative Williams, the democratic floor leader, got into the game.

"I move to strike out the last word," he said. "I do it merely for the purpose of congratulating the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Hemenway) upon this saving of $200,000. The gentleman was so distressed about the $100,000 that he thought we ought not to spend the other day that I have called his attention to the saving of $200,000 which I thought would make him feel better—the saving made by the gentleman from Georgia by his point of order."
"And I want to call the attention of the

"And I want to call the attention of the gentleman from Mississippi," said Mr. Hemenway, "to the fact that the hospital just stricken out of this bill is the hospital that teaches camp sanitation, teaches how to care for the lives of the soldier boys who go out to fight for their country. It is the hospital where the nurses are educated to care for them when they are injured and so forth. It the gentleman thinks that the service performed in that line is not a proper service I have no objection to the item going out."

"Well," said Mr. Williams, "I think that a great many of these military incidents could go out of these appropriation bills without any great harm. Now, on a preceding page there is an item providing for the chair homes of the ceding page there is an item providing for the transportation to their homes of the remains of civilian employes who have died, and all that sort of thing. We are getting to be just like the Chinese. When a man dies anywhere in the world his body must dies anywhere in the world his body must be carried back and put in sacred soil. If I happen to go to Europe next summer with the Speaker of this House and one of us happens to die I should think it would be rather a tax upon the farmers and the mechanics of this country to burden them with bringing the body back. I think either one of us could sleep just as well in the soil of France after we were once good and dead as we could in the soil of America."

"The gentleman underestimates the love of the people of this country for himself and the Speaker," said Mr. Hemenway.

"Well," rejoined Mr. Williams, laughingly, "that may be the case."

Representative Mudd of Virginia made a point of order against the paragraph putting the District of Columbia judiciary on a half-and-half basis.

Representative Mahon of Pennsylvania moved to amend the paragraph appropriating $700,000 for continuing the work on the Agricultural Department building, stating that not more than $300,000 could be spent during the year. The amendment, however, was rejected.

PERSONAL SERVICE.

Coroner Nevitt visited the hospital last Parlor Conference of Charity Workers Indictment for Embezzlement Against at the Residence of Mr. S. W. Woodward.

> Charities was organized Monday evening by Miss Helen C. Woodward at the residence of Mr. S. W. Woodward, 2015 Wyoming avenue northwest. Miss Woodward was recently elected a member of the board of managers of the association. The purpose of the conference, as stated in the cards of invitation, was "to enlist not and personal service." Mr. Woodward's large library was filled by a representative gathering of men and women, who listened with evident interest to the problems of distressed families and neglected sections > of the Associated Charities. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Charles F. Weller, general secretary, who briefly reviewed the history of the charity organization movement, stating that in 150 cities of America an organization like the Associated Charities of Washington has been developed, "mainly for the purpose of bringing more thought and better thought bringing more thought and better thought and more personal service to the solution of the problems of the needy poor." He explained how the city of Washington is divided into eight districts, in each of which a carefully selected, trained agent gives her entire time to visiting, relieving and unpublishing distressed familiar.

> Miss H. Ida Curry, agent for the southwest division, described the problems of her section as suggestive of the difficulties her section as suggestive of the difficulties encountered by all of the agents. She explained especially the danger of unwise alms given in a way to prevent people from learning to labor for themselves when opportunity offers and to save more of their earnings for their unemployed periods in winter months. She told of successful work in reforming drunkards, described the seventy interior alleys of Southwest Wash. seventy interior alleys of Southwest Washington, told about the successful work of collecting small savings among the very poorest people and emphasized the need of personal service in improving the ideals, constructive influences and educational opportunities of the children of neglected

The Georgetown division agent, Mrs. Edna Keene Bushee, was the next speaker. She emphasized particularly the need for cooperation, citing several typical cases in which needy families have been pauperized through aims given by five or six different through aims given by five or six different helpers who did not stop to consult the Associated Charities as to the wisdom and the probable effect of their gifts. Mrs. Bushee explained how the Associated Charities are gradually bringing about effective co-operation, so that aid may be withheld from people whom it encourages in unnecessary idleness, while every effort is made at the same time to develop higher standards of thrift and wholesome living.

time to develop higher standards of thrift and wholesome living.

Miss Ida A. Green, the general agent of the association made an appeal for volunteer helpers. She explained that friendly visitors are desired, each to work for the permanent upbuilding of one needy family. She described the collection of small savings on the stamp-saving system, and appealed for helpers who will give one or two hours weekly to the collection of these savings in certain streets and alleys or among groups of twenty or thirty families to whom the volunteer is introduced by the agent of the Associated Charities. The division conference was also explained to be the group of volunteer workers who met in each of the eight division offices to help the agent in deciding the kind and extent of treatment which is needed in her most difficult cases. Volunteers were solicited for each of the Volunteers were solleited for each of the eight division conferences.
